“The case for Freelancers University needs no explanation – it makes intuitive sense. In an economy increasingly driven by individual innovators and small collaborative teams, the need for education in this space continues to grow. And there’s no better team to see it through to success.” –Jase Wilson, Principal, Luminopolis

“Freelancers University is a brilliant idea! This will be continuing education for the area’s freelance community. Self-employed professionals should take advantage of the benefits the University has to offer.” –Diane Schmidt, Owner, Diane Schmidt & Assoc.

“The migration of so many individuals from the agency environment to freelance means that many will be unfamiliar with the various functions of running a successful business. Freelancers University can teach you how you need insurance, contracts, a good CPA and more that they never taught you in college.” –Phil Watkins, owner (and 20+ year freelancing veteran), Watkins Advertising & Design

“What a cool (and valuable!) endeavor! I am definitely interested in the curriculum. Keep me posted!” –Karen Palmer (Bellinghausen), Manager of Brand Communications at Perceptive Software

“Freelancers University is a great idea! The idea of having an organization that helps an individual quickly learn how to become a freelancer is definitely needed. While there are great programs available for those who want to start their own business, none of them focus on being self-employed ... I’m excited to learn about writing a contract, determine how to collect from clients who won’t pay, tips on how to network better, and other areas that I won’t have to fall into on my own.” –Tonya Wadel, future Freelancers U student
